

MANAGING DAILY IMPROVEMENT

A structure for continuous improvement at all organisational levels

INSIGHT

"If you can't measure it, you can't manage it"

According to McKinsey (2015), 74% of business transformations fail. However, the rate of failure is substantially reduced in organisations that adopt a culture of continuous improvement. In fact, using metrics to hold people accountable for improvement can make an organisation 3.9 times more likely to achieve success.

But with the varying nature of organisations and the rise of big data, could measurement in some cases actually prove to do more harm than good?

Learn about how linking managing daily improvement to business strategy can create agility in problem solving, through communication and understanding of 'what's in it for me?'; empowering the right people to make and sustain improvements.
